OUR HISTORY
- UNC Charlotte is one of a generation of universities founded in metropolitan areas of the United States immediately after World War II in response to rising education demands generated by the war. Originally started in 1946 as an evening college center and named The Charlotte Center, the institution later evolved into Charlotte College in 1949, offering the first two years of college courses.
- In 1961, Charlotte College moved its growing student body into two new buildings on what has become our current 1,000-acre campus. In 1965, North Carolina legislature approved bills making Charlotte College a four-year, state-supported college, thus creating the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, the nation's fourth largest university in the North Carolina system.

Continuing down the path is the Arts Quad (17). This is the heart of the campus, where the Arts Center and演艺中心 are located. The Arts Center houses various art galleries and exhibition spaces, providing students and visitors with an opportunity to explore the arts. The path continues past several buildings, including the Student Union (18), which is a popular gathering spot for students. The Student Union contains various facilities, such as a food court, a bookstore, and student organization offices. It is a hub for social activities and events throughout the semester.

Further along the path, you'll pass the Belk College of Business (19), which is home to the Belk College of Business Administration and includes classrooms and labs for business-related majors. This building also features a Career Center where students can receive advice and assistance with career planning.

As you continue walking, you'll pass several more buildings, including the College of Engineering (20), which offers programs in engineering, computer science, and related fields. This building is also home to the Engineering Research Center and the College of Computing and Information. A few hundred feet down the path, you'll find the College of Education (21), which houses the Department of Educational Studies and the College of Health and Human Services.

Further down the path, you'll pass the Student Union (22), which is a major social and cultural center on campus. It contains a variety of facilities, including a food court, a movie theater, and numerous student organization offices. The Student Union is a popular spot for social events and activities throughout the year.

As you continue along the path, you'll pass several other buildings, including the College of Arts and Sciences (23), which offers programs in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences. This building is also home to the College of Education and the College of Health and Human Services.

As you reach the end of the path, you'll find the BELSCA Building (24), which is home to the School of Business Administration and includes classrooms and labs for business-related majors. This building also features a Career Center where students can receive advice and assistance with career planning.

This concludes your self-guided walking tour. On your drive out, follow the right and head back to the Student Union (22).
We hope you enjoyed your tour. Thank you for visiting UNC Charlotte!

ON YOUR WAY OUT, THERE’S MORE TO SEE...

...But first, stop by the Student Union for a sweet treat. You can find sweets on the second floor. If you’re looking for something savory, you’ll find a variety of options on both floors.

Continue left along the path and you will see Prospector (34) to the north. This building is home to the Departments of Physics and Chemistry. Once past Burson, take a left and walk up the hill. On your left is Cameron Hall (42), which is home to the Departments of English, History, and Classical Languages.

You are standing at the southeast corner of campus outside of Cato Hall, Fretwell, Storrs, & Robinson Hall. As you continue through the building and out the back door, turn right and head back to Cato Hall (48). Continue along the path, you’ll pass the Belk Track and Field (44). Continuing along the path, you’ll pass the Prospector (34) on your left.

Continue straight ahead, you will arrive at our main student hub of Student Union Plaza-Woodward Hall, Coed, & ChHS. Continuing straight ahead, you will follow the “star quad”. This unique feature of the campus, this hexagon was designed by the architectural firm Gwathmey Siegel & Associates. Your tour will end off every building around you. Go ahead and give it a look. We’ll see you around! We hope you enjoyed your tour. Thank you for visiting UNC Charlotte.
